PROTECT CHILDREN'S EYES FROM HARMFUL UV RAYS

The more time your child spends outdoors, the more susceptible he or she is to sun damage. Published scientific research concludes that up to 50% of lifetime UV ray exposure occurs by age 18.

When compared to adults' eyes, children's eyes have fewer natural protections against the sun's harmful UV rays, making their eyes more likely to be damaged.

A recent Vision Council survey revealed that while 74% of adults wear sunglasses to protect their own eyes, only 58% of parents have their children wear sunglasses. Protect your child's eyes too!
